

Henry Hudson's navigator made note of the area's green-veined rock during the 1609 voyage up the river that now bears the explorer's name. The men on the ship Half Moon were the first Europeans known to have seen the island. They were followed by Dutchmen, who visited the future Hoboken in those early years calling it "Hoebuck" meaning "high bluff". Today we call the elevation Castle Point.

The Lenni Lenape camped seasonally on the land and were not permanent residents. They called the spot "Hopoghan Hackingh," or "Land of the Tobacco Pipe", for they used the green-colored serpentine rock abundant in the area to carve pipes for smoking tobacco. In 1658 Peter Stuyvesant, Dutch Governor of Manhattan, bought all the land between Hackensack and the Hudson Rivers from the Lenni Lenape for 80 fathoms of wampum, 20 fathoms of cloth, 12 kettles, 6 guns, 2 blankets, 1 double kettle and half barrel of beer.
